TUESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 20.

The order relieving Gen. Sheridan from his command in Louisiana, &c., and re-assigning Generals Hancock and Thomas, it is expected will be promulgated either to-day or to-morrow. The Washington Chronicle says: "Gen. Grant received this order yesterday morning. It was positive in its terms, leaving no alternative but strict compliance, although General Grant called upon the President about one o'clock yesterday, and strongly protested against the measure. But the President was determined to adhere to his purpose, and the order will be transmitted with instructions through the Adjutant General's office to-day."

In a letter published in the Philadelphia Inquirer, Chief Justice Chase says: "I think I am worth now about one hundred thousand dollars. I should at any rate be quite willing to take that sum in five-twenties, and make a clear conveyance of all I have in the world to any body who will pay my debts. I would willingly be worth a great deal more if I knew an honest way to get worth more."

A disturbance has occurred in Chicopee, Mass., in consequence of the attempt of the State Constable to seize a few barrels of ale, in transitu. The mill operatives drove the constable cut of the town. He returned, with a re inforcement, and made other seizures. The operatives were very demonstrative, and a riot was feared. Additional police force had been organized.

It now appears that the affidavits published a few days since, alleging that Messrs. Pryor and Wood were engaged in an effort to get the affiants to swear falsely against Judge Holt, never were on file in any department! They were left in the office of Mr. Riddle by an individual whose name it is said he declines to give. Shameful!

It will gratify his friends in Virginia, his native State, to learn that General Price has been rid of all the suits which had been commenced against him in the Missouri courts for acts done by him while engaged in the late war. JUDICIAL CRITICISM. - A queer scene is re lated as having once taken place in the English Court of Chancery tetween Lord Campbell and an eminent lawyer-a Queen's counsel.-In an action brought to recover for damages done to a carriage, the learned counsel repeatedly called the vehicle in question a brougham, where upon Lord Campbell, with considerable promposity, observed: "Broom is the more usual pronunciation; a carriage of the kind you mean is generally and not incorrectly called a broom. That pronunciation is open to no grave objection, and it has the advantage of the time consumed by uttering an extra syllable." Half an hour later in the same trial, Lord Campbell, alluding to a similar action given, said: "In that case, the carria, to which had sustained injury was an omnibus-"Pardon me, my lord," interupted the Queen's counsel with such promptitude that his lordship was startled into silence, "a carriage of the kind to which you draw attention is usually termed a buss. That pronunciation is open to no grave objection, and has the great advantage of saving the time consumed by uttering the two extra syllables." . The interruption was followed by a roar of laughter, in which Lord Campbell joined more heartily than any

HOW THE SOUTH IS INJURED. - A sentleman was recently selected by London parties to come to New York, and there sell drafts on London, the proceeds to be loaned in Tennessee, but before he sailed news reashed England that Governor Brownlow had called out the militia. -The London capitalists thereupon called a meeting, which decided to detain their agent for further advices. CHEEVER'S CHURCH .- Dr. Cheever's Church, in Union Square, presents a strange interior at present, being an artist's studio, a carpenter's shop, and a semi-theatre in embryo. A company of gentlemen have leased the edifice until March, 1868, and are preparing it for the exhibition of a series of paintings illustrative of Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress. These scenes are painted by Leutze, Chappell, Culverhouse, Nehleg, Ralling, Berger, Sommer, and others. Music from a trained quartette and choruses will be a feature, while it is intended to typify the arrival of the pilgrims at the Heavenly City by such skillfully devised and manipulated machinery as will equal any transformation seene at Niblo's. The season will open about September 15, and the church will then be called "Pilgrim Hall." - New York Tribune. | more critical.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

To show the very age and body of the times.

Mr. McCormick having accepted an invita tion from the Emperor Napoleon to give a private exhibition of the working of his reap ing machine, a trial was made last week on the imperial farm, near Chalons, at which his Majesty was present, accompaned by Marshal Niel, Gen. Le Boeuf, and M. Tiperand, Director General of the Imperial Agricultural Estates. The trial was a complete success, and gave so much satisfaction to the Emperor that he immediately gave orders for the purchase of three of the machines for use on his private farms, and earnestly expressed the intention of encouraging the adoption of the invention throughout France.

As the New York express train yesterday was approaching Wilmington, it struck the buggy of a gentleman attempting to cross the track, stripping the harness entirely from his horse, which was terribly mangled, and had to be shot. The carrage and gentleman were carried forward on the truck of the engine for a mile before the train was stopped, the speed at the moment of the accident being forty miles her hour. When the train was stopped the body of an old gentleman was taken in a lifeless condition from the debris of his buggy, the latter being completely smashed up and piled in a heap on the truck of the engine.

A duel was fought last Saturday, at Weehawken, near New York, between Mr. James Wilson, an Englishman, and a leading salesman in a prominent English wool importing house in New York, and Senor Francis di Ballo, a Cuban, reported to be possessed of fabulous wealth, and a large plantation owner. The cause was a woman a daughter of a millionaire, to whom both paid their addresses -Three shots; result: a nip out of Wilson's ear, and a wound in the fleshy part of the Cuban's left leg-and the "affair" ended.

SURRENDER OF SOUTHERN RAILROADS. The report of the special committe of the House appointed to investigate the surrender of the Southern railroads at the close of the war, which has just been published, contains many interesting facts concerning the use, working and benefit of these roads to the Government, as well as the manner in which their original owners obtained possession of them. Secretary Stanton was examined at length, and his opinion on the surrender of the roads and disposition of the rolling stock being asked, he gave it as follows:

"My opinion is now, that although the course pursued has not been followed by all the good results that were anticipated, yet the measure was wise and judicious, and the best course that could have been taken by the Gov ernment, with the facts that were then before them. I think good has resulted in opening those channels of commerce, in getting from the Rebel States their productions, and in turnishing them with supplies, without which, there is reason to believe, there would have been starvation to a deplorable extent. And, regarded as a pecuniary question, if it could be estimated, I think that the benefit far exceeds the money value of the roads and property turned over, and even with the experience and the disappointment of anticipated hopes as to the speedy restoration of peace that now exists, I would not, as at present advised, be prepared to recommend any other or different meas-

THE CABINET. - We are satisfied that the telegraphic reports to the effect that further changes in the Cabinet are imminent, had their origin in the fact, that upon the exhibition of continuacy on the past of Mr. Stanton the other members gave the President assurances 27, that if reasons of trate should at any time render a reconstruction of the Cabinet in his opinion necessary, they would cheerfully tender their resignations. COMMUNICATED.

In a debate in the Maryland Convention to amend the Constitution, to incorporate a proposition to change the mode of appointing the Directors of the Chesapeake and Ohio Capal, the following thrilling tribute to our time-honored Commonwealth was uttered by J. Philip Roman, of Allegany county. As but few of our people are likely, otherwise, to read these remarks of this eloquent member of the Convention, it is hoped, by a transfer to the col umns of the Gazette, very many of the people of Virginia will read with pride and pleasure this extract:

"But if these considerations have no influence on the judgment of this Convention; if you, Mr. President, turn a deaf ear to those who own $3,226,000 of the capital stock of this company; if you turn a deaf ear to the bondholders who furnished the money to complete the canal, at a time when the company was bankrupt, the treasury of your State exhausted, and its credit dishonored, will you turn a deaf ear to the State of Virginia, which is in terested in these bonds to the extent of $1,300, 000, and appeals to you in behalf of her exhausted treasury, and in the name of her taxridden people? She owes a public debt of $45,000,000, and West Virginia disgracefully refuses to pay any share of it. She has been despoiled of her richest territory, and has last more than one-half of her entire wealth by the late war; the iron heel of the oppressor is upon her people; yet thus oppressed, and impoverished, she resumed the payment of the interest on that debt. rather than allow her name to be dishonored. She resumes the payment of this interest under circumstances which would influence the people of any other State to clamor for repudiation; but Virginia could not forget she is the birthplace and tomb of the Father of his country, and that the author of the Magna Charta of our National Independence sleeps beneath her green sods. She did all in her power to prevent the late unhappy war, but when her territory was threatened with invasion,

Instant from copse and heath arose Bonnets and spears and bended bows; On right on left, above, below, Sprang out at once the valiant foe; And every tuft of broom gave life, To plaided warriors armed for strife

And for four years she guarded her border by an impenetrable wall of living men; but the God of battles gave the terrible arbitrament against her, and she now lies prostrate and impoverished, and appeals to this Convention to adopt this provision, which can do us no harm, but will relieve her oppressed people, whose past traditions, associations and institutions were in harmony with our own, and whose future hopes and destinies are closely linked with ours. Maryland is bound to Virginia by all the hallowed ries of the past -After her Washington, a name with which this ancient capital and these walls will be forever associated, had given peace to his country, and while yet clothed with absolute power, the chief of a victorious army, the idel of a confiding people, came into these halls and surrendered that absolute power into the hands of the people. It is Virginia, once powerful, but now prostrate, that appeals to this Convention to adopt this provision | I believe her claim is founded in justice and honor. I believe that divorce the canal from political power, and to place it in position to pay its creditors.

"That more stringent legislation toward: the South will grow out of the suspension of Mr. Stanton is plain to all reflecting men.

A Radical organ thus admits that its party is governed, not by principle, but by a spirit of petty revenge, in its government of the South ern States. Because Mr. Johnson has suspended a Radical Secretary of War, the Southern States are to be punished! Does history furnish any precedent for malignity so despicable towards an unoffending people? - Richmond

The New York Times, on the subject of "Building in the City," claims that the friend: of strikes, and of the eight hours' law, have no need to felicitate themselves on the result of their labors. The condition of the work man is not improved, and wages are really declining. This, with the diminishing cost of materials, has given a new impulse to building. The Times insists that it is folly for men to seek by compulsion to interfere with the immutable laws of trade.
